The Definition of an Antique

The Criminal Code defines an antique firearm as:

- Any firearm manufactured before 1898 that was not designed to discharge rim-fire or centre-fire ammunition, and that has not been re-designed to discharge such ammunition, or
- Any firearm prescribed to be an antique firearm. The following firearms are prescribed to be antique firearms under the Regulations Prescribing Antique Firearms:

Black Powder Reproductions:

- of flintlock, wheel-lock or matchlock firearms, other than handguns, manufactured after 1897; (Note that all other reproductions of long guns are considered non-restricted firearms. They don't need to be registered but a licence to possess them is required. As an example, reproductions of percussion cap muzzle-loading firearms like American Civil War Enfield and Springfield rifles are considered non-restricted firearms and not antiques.)

Rifles:

- manufactured before 1898 that can discharge only rim-fire cartridges, other than .22 Calibre Short, .22 Calibre Long or .22 Calibre Long Rifle cartridges;
- manufactured before 1898 that can discharge centre-fire cartridges (whether with a smooth or rifled bore), have a bore diameter of 8.3 mm or greater, measured from land to land in the case of a rifled bore, with the exception of a repeating firearm fed by any type of cartridge magazine;

Shotguns:

- manufactured before 1898 that can discharge only rim-fire cartridges, other than .22 Calibre Short, .22 Calibre Long or .22 Calibre Long Rifle cartridges;

How to Properly and Safely Sight In a Rifle

Inspect and clean the bore, especially on a new firearm!

1. Save time and money by bore sighting the firearm.
2. Take the initial shot(s) @ 20-25 yards!
3. Adjust the point of impact by moving the rear sight or scope in the direction you want the shots to move. Be aware that 1/4" of adjustment @ 100 yards means 1/16" @ 25 yards.
4. Take 2 more shots @ 20-25 yards.
5. When point of impact is centred move to 50-75 yards.
6. Take 2 more shots @ 50-75 yards.
7. Repeat step 4
8. Gradually move to the desired distance, usually 100 yards.

Some Points to Remember

The last thing you want is for shots to completely miss the backstop or hit the overhead baffle!

A properly sighted firearm will add to your shooting enjoyment. First impressions are lasting impressions so sight your firearm before hunting or target shooting.

Study a ballistic table to determine what distance you want your firearm to be sighted in for.
